

Putting psychic power on show

Psychic artist Nick Ashron with the drawing of Joan Butter's son.

David Berman

Ever been steered away from a potential disaster by some sort of intuition or mystical force?

Psychic artist Nick Ashron of Purley claims it's all the work of spiritual guides, departed souls who guide the living through the tricky minefield of life.

Nick draws portraits of these guides after meeting people and was displaying his talents at the Golden Bough Bookshop in West Croydon last Saturday. He astounded Joan Butter, who was there, by drawing a picture of her dead son, who is now one of her spritual guides.

"She was quite overcome with emotion and recognised him immediately," Golden Bough owner Lisa Jackson said. "Sometimes you feel different and walk down a different road and later you find out there was an accident there, which is a perfect example of someone being guided away from a traumatic experience," she said.